

Out for dinner

Last Friday, I went out for dinner with Claire and Helen. Helen's got a new job so we went out to celebrate. Claire booked a table for 7.30pm at her favourite Italian restaurant in town. When we arrived, the waiter showed us to our table, gave us some menus and took our drinks order. We were really hungry so we decided to have a starter and a main. We placed our order and chatted for a while. Our garlic bread soon arrived. We were hungry, so it disappeared very quickly! Next, the waiter brought our mains. He said, "Buon Appetito!", which is Italian for 'Enjoy your meal!'. Claire and Helen chose pasta and I had pizza. The food was delicious, but I couldn't manage a dessert! Claire and Helen had some ice cream, but I just had a coffee. I can't wait to go again!